How the app works, so you can explain it

1. Give it an idea. A topic, a question, a few notes, or the buyer's own finished script (kept word for word).
2. The AI writes a storyboard. A scene for each part, with its narration. The buyer reads it and changes anything before a picture or voice is made.
3. The app draws the motion. Charts, timelines, maps, kinetic text, transitions, icons and captions are drawn by the app on the buyer's PC. No AI call for these, no credit.
4. Pictures and voice. Pictures are the one big cost. The buyer picks one of 21 AI voices and hears it first, a free voice is available, or uses their own recording.
5. Check and render. The app looks at every scene for cut-off text, fixes what it can, and renders the MP4 on the PC with captions. Rendering uses no credit.

Bring your own AI key (BYOK): what to tell your audience

VidSupreme does not resell AI. The buyer makes a key with an AI provider such as OpenRouter and pastes it into the app once. The provider bills the buyer directly, with no markup from us. The AI usually costs about 16 to 33 cents for a minute of finished video (measured October 2026; provider prices change), and about 8 of every 10 of those cents are the pictures. Free models are available with a free key, and the app shows the cost before it spends and has a Check balance button.

What approved partners get

- A review copy of the app, so you can see it before you promote it
- Ready-to-send email swipes and a demo video
- A direct line to the maker, one to one
- A partner page with the funnel, prices, commission calculator and answers to common questions

Please say these things honestly

- Buyers need their own AI key. Please say so in your content.
- Windows 10 and 11 only for now. Videos render on the buyer's PC, so long videos take longer on slower machines.
- The installer is not code-signed yet, so Windows shows an unknown-publisher notice; the thank-you page explains how to continue.
- The free trial adds a watermark and has a one-minute limit; the paid app has no watermark and makes videos up to 5 minutes (longer with Pro).
- VidSupreme makes the videos. Please do not promise views, subscribers or income, and do not call the commission figures above a promise of earnings.
- Refunds follow the marketplace's rules: buyers can ask within 14 days.
- Updates to the app you buy are free for the life of the product. Optional upgrades are separate products.

Where the facts come from

Prices, commissions and dates: the offer pages on WarriorPlus and JVZoo and vidsupreme.phamstud.com/jv. AI cost: real calls through OpenRouter in October 2026, shown with the cost table on the sales page. Market figures on the sales page are public statistics with their source and the date they were read.
